Supervision-Related Educational Workshop: 3 credit hours

Crafting a Container of Trust:

Using an Attachment and Parts Work Lens to Increase Safety, Decrease Harm and Encourage Transparency in the Supervisory Relationship

Presented by:

Rainer Quinn Catkin Rivenburgh, MAAT, ATR-BC, ATCS, LAT, LPC, SEP

Clinical supervision is not therapy, but it can be therapeutic--and embracing this, rather than avoiding it, benefits the supervisee's growth, increases ethical and relational competencies, and improves their clients' success in therapy. In this highly experiential, interactive three-hour workshop, you will have the opportunity to explore your own relational associations with the supervision process, as well as learn concrete strategies and processes for offering solid clinical supervision. Drawing from developmental approaches, attachment theory, and feminist/Relational-Cultural Theory lineages, Rainer will support attendees in honing their attachment-based, trauma-informed supervision skills.

Attendees will:

Identify tools and resources for supporting supervisee's ethical and relational competencies

Apply a unique lens to the conceptualization of the process of clinical supervision

Engage in an art and/or written experiential process to discover their own resources and strengths

Work through multiple real-world examples via case studies to harness learning into action

28 SEPTEMBER 2024

11:00 AM - 2:00 PM CST, ZOOM

Master of Arts in Art Therapy and Counseling program
The School of the Art Institute of Chicago
37 S. Wabash Ave., Suite 713  312.899.7481
arttherapy@saic.edu
http://www.saic.edu/academics/departments/art-therapy

RSVP Here by 9/25

Questions? ddelsi@saic.edu

For SAIC site supervisors, faculty and alumni